ITV ANNOUNCES NEW WEEKEND SHOWS FOR SPRING 2022

A host of famous faces are set to present four brand new series for Saturday and Sunday mornings on ITV, this Spring.

Produced by Cactus TV and commissioned by Katie Rawcliffe and Leanne Clarke for ITV Entertainment, the new series include lifestyle magazine show Garraway's Good Stuff for Saturdays and entertainment show, Big Zuu's Breakfast Show, for Sundays.

Garraway's Good Stuff is a new lifestyle magazine show for Saturday mornings, presented by much-loved Good Morning Britain presenter KATE GARRAWAY MBE. The 22 x 60' series will see Kate joined by friends and celebrities as she starts the weekend in style.

Kate and co will give viewers the best start to their weekend, with topics including the latest health and wellbeing tips and what to cook for your Saturday night TV dinner.

There will be three new shows for Sunday mornings throughout the summer. Kicking off in the slot is Big Zuu's Breakfast Show. Chef and musician BIG ZUU will front his very own show, full of great guests, mouth-watering food and unmissable entertainment. The 8 x 60' series will tap into all Zuu's talents - cooking, music, chat and more.

Big Zuu will then hand over to VICK HOPE for 8 x 60' episodes of her own Sunday morning show, followed by KATIE PIPER who will host 6 x 60'. Vick and Katie will each have their own brand of topical chat and exciting guests to ease viewers into their Sundays.

Head of ITV Entertainment, Katie Rawcliffe said: "I'm delighted we can bring this brilliant line-up of presenters to our weekend mornings starting this Spring. The shows will offer the perfect mix of entertainment, chat and food to get our viewers ready for their Saturday and Sundays ahead."

CEO of Cactus TV, Amanda Ross, Executive Producer of all four shows said: "These four very different hosts guarantee us all an exciting summer of variety on ITV weekend mornings. We couldn't be more delighted!"
