ITV commissions Camilla's Country Life (w/t) from Spun Gold TV

ITV has commissioned a one-off documentary from Spun Gold TV with exclusive access to The Duchess of Cornwall in her role as Guest Editor of Country Life magazine to mark her 75th birthday.

Camilla's Country Life (1x60'), from award-winning Director Michael Waldman (Inside the Foreign Office), accompanies The Duchess of Cornwall as she plans and oversees a special edition of Country Life during the magazine's 125th anniversary year, alongside performing her regular royal duties.

The documentary's access to The Duchess of Cornwall - the future Queen Consort - reveals her love for the British countryside and the people and places that have shaped her. To put the edition together, Her Royal Highness has invited guest writers to discover her passions, reveal her personal countryside champions and meet the people who run the charities and advocate for causes she cares so deeply about.

Jo Clinton-Davis, ITV Controller of Factual, said:

"This film presents a unique opportunity to gain an insight into The Duchess of Cornwall, at close quarters, immersed within her personal passions and engaged with some of those closest to her."

Daniela Neumann, Managing Director of Spun Gold TV said:

"Camilla's Country Life (w/t) will provide a unique [MOU1] portrait of our future Queen Consort, by exploring the personal passions which have meant so much to her throughout her life as she puts together the magazine, while also fulfilling her royal engagements. We're delighted to be working with ITV, with Country Life and with Michael Waldman, who has such a great ability to draw new and engaging insights from his subjects."

Camilla's Country Life (w/t) is a Spun Gold TV production for ITV. It is directed by Michael Waldman, the producer is Ross Curran and the executive producer is Nick Bullen. It was commissioned for ITV by Jo Clinton-Davis. All3Media International has worldwide distribution rights.
